

LIVES OF SCHOOL CHILDREN MENACED BY DEFECTIVE HEATING APPARATUS

A fire danger which lurks in an inadequate heating plant daily menaces the lives of 625 public school children at the Lincoln building, Elizabeth and Vine streets, it was learned Tuesday.

An investigation showed holes cut in the first floor of the building above the heating apparatus to get at a fire that broke out in the building three weeks ago.

Engineer Lawrence in charge of the building heating plant, declared that there is danger of fire at all times.

In the room immediately above the furnaces Tuesday an odor of scorched timbers in the flooring of the room issued from the heat register in the center.

The desks of the pupils surround the register. A new floor showed where the old one had been replaced.

Lawrence said that a line of garden hose was kept ready at all times during school hours in the expectation of fire. The engineer is assisted by three sixth grade pupils in the event of fire.

The heating plant is located in the basement of the building directly under a class room. A space of possibly three feet separates the ceiling of the basement from the top of the furnace.

The building Monday filled with smoke and those in charge were alarmed at the condition. School was dismissed close to noon time.

Due to failure to properly heat the building intermittent dismissals have prevailed since the start of the cold weather, it developed.

A summary of the situation at the school shows that the heating plant is inadequate to care for the needs of the building.

Fire Chief Mack when told of the conditions stated that he was already familiar with the situation.

He declared he had no power to act in the matter. That jurisdiction was vested in the state building inspector, he said. Mack declared that the conditions had been made familiar to the inspector.

As far as the fire official knew he had taken no action in the matter.

The intense heat derived from the overfiring of the heating apparatus to keep the rooms at a comfortable degree of warmth has dried the timbers in the intervening space above the furnaces and between the first floor.

At the last fire the engineer stated that the charred remains of stanchion joists and beams were seen. He intimated that the floor above the furnaces was ready at any moment to burst into flame.

Teachers at the building declared that Tuesday was the first in many weeks that the rooms were kept at a comfortable degree of heat.

Children in one of the rooms sat humped over their desks as if in discomfort.

The engineer explained the difficulty in keeping the building warm by saying that the heating plant was entirely inadequate. Parts of the building were located 150 feet from the heating plant and the heat could not be forced that distance, he said.

A huge fan installed, according to Lawrence, was originally set to distribute the heat. Due to a shortage of gas the fan had not been in operation following the holiday vacation. An electric motor was set during the vacation period.

Opening of the school Monday proved that the danger was eliminated. Engineer Lawrence said that the fan proved insufficient for the heating plant.

Monday the fan was started after the odor of burning timbers had been detected. Smoke issued from a hole cut in the top of the furnace when the draught was started, Lawrence said.

Members of the Board of Education Monday night discussed the floating of a bond issue approximating $200,000 for the installation of new heating equipment in the Lincoln and nine other buildings. The bond issue would come before the voters next November. Relief could not be afforded until the opening of schools the following year.

RADICAL MINERS HELD DOWN

Conservatives Keep Power And Will Ratify Settlement

MAY TAKE VOTE LATE TODAY

Opposition Speaker Heckled
While Attacking Adjustment

COLUMBUS—The radicals among the delegates to the United Mine Workers of America convention Tuesday were still "radicalizing", but getting weaker.

An attempt by a conservative to "move the previous question" and vote on the motion to endorse action of union officials, was stopped by President Lewis.

"Let them talk," he advised. However, officials believe, the vote to endorse or reject the officials' report, will be taken late Tuesday. If it is, the convention will probably break the week today.

Frank O'Neil, of Dawson, Ill., was heckled all thru his speech Tuesday morning against the agreement made with the government.

Asked to explain what course he would have pursued with the government's demand had he been the president of the miners, O'Neil said:

"I would have taken no action until I had called a convention of the miners to find out what the rank and file of the United Mine Workers would have been satisfied with."

His answer was greeted with great applause. "The 41,000 miners in District 17, of West Virginia are with you, Mr. Lewis, and Mr. Green, and they'll stand back of you to the finish," C. P. Keeney, of Charleston, W. Va., said.

"You could do nothing to better satisfy the operators, than to refuse to stand by your officers," Frank Bender, district 6, Cambridge, Ohio, told the convention.

"Our officers swallowed their pride when they rescinded the strike order. We can rectify this at the ballot box."

In answer to a question of whether the commission at Washington would have authority to take care of the matter of differentials in Ohio and Pennsylvania districts, President Lewis replied it would consider these matters.

For many years Ohio and Pennsylvania miners have had trouble in getting the same rate of mining state. President Moore of Ohio, and President Murray of Pennsylvania will present this question to the Washington commission.

HEARS PERSONAL PLEA FOR RAISE

Chief Justice Goes Before Legislative Committee

COLUMBUS—Personal appeals for higher salaries for state employees poured in fast Monday on the legislative committee that is gathering data on the subject.

Chief Justice Nichols of the supreme court, appeared personally to plead for the score or more of court employees, many of whom are now working for the same pay they received ten years ago.

In a written brief members of the state utilities commission, recommended that their own salaries be raised from $4,500 to $6,000 a year each but they were not so generous with the "little fellows" who work under them. They recommended that employees who now receive $650 a year be increased to $700. What members of the legislative committee said concerning the commissions' generosity will not be a part of the official record.

Thousands of state employees will have representatives state their financial needs to the committee this week.

That wage increases will be recommended by the committee to the legislature when it convenes is indicated by the committee's attitude in discussing with the employees their present financial status.

WORLD PEACE WILL BE SIGNED SATURDAY

BLUNDER IS MADE ON BIG SEWER

Concrete Block Cannot Be Used
In Tunnel Work Here

INVESTIGATION TO BE MADE

Delay in Operation Necessary—
City Not to Lose

Someone blundered in planning the Collett street sewer.

This became evident at the meeting of the new council last night when new legislation of a change in the present contract be made to allow the work to continue.

It was announced that it is impossible to lay the segment concrete the contract calls for in the tunnel work which has been started at the corner of North and Collett street and declared that it will be necessary to change the construction in order to continue with the work.

After this became known council passed a resolution that the matter be referred to the sewer committee and the city solicitor and an investigation made.

The Collett street work was let some months ago and segment block is impossible to complete the upper part of the ring with the block in the tunnel and that it is necessary either to make the excavation higher at the top in order to allow workmen to lay the block or change the material. The latter probably will be done, it was said.

Elmer McClain, new service director said that by making the tunnel higher above in order to lay the block, it would be necessary then to fill in the earth above the completed ring. This would be difficult and not satisfactory since it would allow the street to settle and ruin the pavement if not make the street impassable. He said that brick probably will be used at the top of the ring with the block at the bottom.

This, he said, will not cost the city any additional money. He said the work will not be held up for any length of time.

The contract will be revamped, it is said, to meet the conditions as they are found.

Councilman Gabel of the Second Ward, asked the question whether a higher priced engineer such as the city had employed to handle the sewer work should allow this blunder to be made. It was he who moved that the work be stopped until the matter is straightened out.

The block can be used to advantage in open construction, city officials said, and this will be done.

ADDITIONAL MEMBERS OF BOXING COMMISSION NAMED

Mayor Frank A. Burkhardt named the two remaining members of the boxing commission Tuesday.

He selected for this important position J. Miller Laudick and William H. Gallant.

The mayor, on taking the oath of office New Year's Day, named Calvin F. Selfridge, James G. Mackenzie, H. G. Sharpley, P. M. Driver and Frank Callahan.

With the announcement of the two new names, the commission is now complete.

BIRTH RATE HERE EXCEEDS DEATH

Mortality Shows Decrease Over
Previous Year, However

Births in Lima during the year 1919 largely exceeded the number of deaths according to statistics just made up in the office of Dr. A. L. Jones, health officer.

But one case of influenza has been reported thus far this winter and it was not fatal. Lima has not had a death from influenza since last May, according to the records. During that month two men died from influenza, complicated with pneumonia.

Deaths from all causes in the past year numbered 554 in Lima. In 1918 the number of 708 deaths were recorded. The number of deaths in 1918 over 1919 is 154.

In the townships surrounding Lima this year the number of deaths reached 112. Last year 131 were reported.

Pneumonia in the winter months, typhoid fever in the summer months and heart, kidney and brain trouble claim most of the victims. In December of the past year there was 11 death, from pneumonia and kindred diseases.

Eight hundred and fifty-five births have been reported to the health office. The statistician believed that many more will be yet reported. Last year births of the month of May of the year before were not reported until February.

Lima had 1,022 births in 1918, a falling off this year of at least 100. In the townships 117 births were reported for the year, while last year the number reached only 109.

RAISE PENSIONS

Pass Bill For $65,000,000 Increase to Civil War Vets.

WASHINGTON—An increase in pensions for veterans of the Civil War aggregating $65,000,000 a year was passed Monday by the house of representatives.

A report filed with the house by the committee on invalid pensions, show that on June 30, last, there were 211,391 survivors of the Civil War; 293,244 widows of those who had died and 6,836 children all of whom are entitled to pensions.

"The old veterans of the Civil War are passing away rapidly," the committee report said, "and unless financial assistance is granted the survivors at once, it will come too late."

CITY LIGHT RATE IS FIXED

Council Forestalls New Schedule
Filed by Ohio Electric.

OLD FIGURES ARE ADOPTED

Mayor Burkhardt Affixes His Signature to Draft

Immediately after the new councilmen took the oath of office last night and got under way they passed a temporary light and power ordinance for the city of Lima, fixing the old rates as the ones the Ohio Electric may charge. This was done to forestall the collection of the higher rates provided in the new schedule filed by the O. E. some time ago with the state public utilities commission.

The temporary ordinance provides that the rates in effect now shall be charged by the company and that the ordinance may run until the first of next August if desired. This was done in order that the new franchise the citizens committee is drafting will be ready by the time the temporary one expires.

It is probable that the new ordinance will be in effect only a short time, it was said, since the attorneys for the citizens committee hope to have the permanent drafts they are working on out within two weeks, at least.

The new schedules the O. E. proposes would go into effect January 15.

The new council, all members of which were present with the exception of H. L. Hopper, councilman at large, had a mass of routine business to transact, most of which consisted of petitions and permits. The light ordinance was practically the only piece of legislation passed.

The new members were sworn in by Mel Killy, retiring city solicitor. The members of the old organization were present and heard the reading of the last minutes and completed their duties in the prescribed way.

The new members were set up to the smokers by the retiring councilmen and also by President Dempster.

Mayor Frank A. Burkhardt at noon Monday signed the temporary ordinance passed by the city council Monday night, providing that the rates now in effect for light and power shall continue to be charged by the Ohio Electric rail way.

It forestalls the increase of rates which would have become effective January 15, in case no action had been taken against the proposed increase schedule as filed with the public utilities commission.

SCHOOL TEACHERS DESERT RANKS IN THOUSANDS

WASHINGTON—More than 134,000 school teachers resigned last year to accept more lucrative work. Secretary of the Interior Lane declared Monday. The greatest bulwark against the spread of Bolshevism through the United States—the public school—is in danger of crumbling because of the fact that teachers' salaries have not been increased to keep pace with the cost of living, Lane said.

Harmony Declared Established
At Big Chicago Meeting

(CHICAGO) The Republican national organization was "tuned up" for the 1920 campaign Tuesday. The pitch and the harmony were established by National Chairman Will H. Hays, presidential aspirant Governor Frank O. Lowden and Mayor Leonard Wood, and several women leaders at a banquet here Monday night, the eve of the first anniversary of the death of Theodore Roosevelt.

The speakers were unanimous on one subject—knocking the reds, revolutionists and others who seek to overthrow the American government. Chairman Hays said there was a remedy for "the I. W. W., or what not—it is taken against the wall, standing."

General Wood declared stress issue of the day was maintenance of law, order and respect for constituted authority. "Ninety-nine percent of our organizations are on the square and want to run straight," he declared.

He advocated placing labor "under American leadership," and taking it out of the hands of reds wherever they have gained control.

"Don't make America the dumping ground for the degenerates of the world," he declared.

Governor Lowden urged men and women to take a greater interest in their own government so that unrest and dissatisfaction could be eliminated.

The meeting of the women's sections and various other groups continued Tuesday, outlining campaign plans.

CEREMONY TO BE IN CLOAK ROOM

Allied Note Reducing Demands on Germany is Ready

14 ALLIED POWERS TO SIGN

Wholesale Execution of Communists Ordered Stopped

PARIS—The ceremony, placing in effect the treaty of Versailles, will be held in the cloak room of the foreign office at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, it was stated semi-officially Tuesday. The German delegates Von Simon, and Von Lersner after signing the protocol, will have handed the allied note reducing demands on Germany for surrender of docks and tonnage and granting a delay of 30 months for delivery.

Ratifications then will be exchanged, the Germans signing first and then representatives of the 14 allied powers who ratified the Versailles pact. Allied troops will be started immediately to occupy the various territories where plebiscites are to be held. Transportation of these troops thru Germany will last 11 days.

Meantime, M. Demacilly, French charge d'affaires will leave for Berlin while the German charge, probably Baron Von Brenner, will be installed in the German embassy after presenting his letters of credit to the president of the republic.

The supreme council Tuesday instructed the inter-allied commission at Budapest to prevent the reported, wholesale executions of persons prominent in communist circles during the dictatorship of Bela Kun. The allies will demand all these people be accorded fair trial.

The council also established the conditions under which Germany shall turn Danzig over to allied control preparatory to the plebiscite. Replying to a German request that the number of troops sent to the various areas where plebiscites are to be held, be reduced, because of Germany's inability to stand the expense of a great number of men, the council pointed out the number already cut was reduced on failure of the United States to participate as had been planned.

The Rumanian reply to the council's recent ultimatum was received Tuesday but its contents not made public.

SAVE WATER, NEW MAYOR SAYS

Shortage May Result Rainfall
Is Light Here

Mayor Burkhardt and Elmer McClain, newly-appointed service director, inspected the water works and filtration plant, Tuesday morning. They went over every detail of the plants thoroly.

"There is a condition there which should be brought to the attention of the people," Mayor Burkhardt said. "The water in Lima Lake is very low now and unless there should be rains soon, there would be a scarcity of water, in about six weeks."

"During the rains of the late fall, the coal shortage was apparent and the usual amount could not be used for pumping and storing up the supply. Pumping can only be done while the river is high or abundant rains fall and it might be well for people now to conserve the water supply," he stated.

FIERY POLITICAL RACE SEEN

Overcrowded Field of Candidates Promises Real Action.

HOOVER NOW DISCUSSED

Pershing Boom is Slated to Grow Rapidly.

NEW YORK — Republican and Democratic parties are suffering from an overcrowded pre-convention field of candidates.

Several of the sagacious politicians are discussing the possibility of a real four-cornered race.

There has been a rumbling of discontent among some Democrats for several weeks, first because it was believed the administration favored William G. McAdoo, and now that the national committee and administration powers are out to nominate A. Mitchell Palmer, this feeling has resulted in some actual protest.

OPPOSITION TO WOOD

In the Republican list, one element is passing the word that the Republican National Committee is opposing Maj. Gen. Wood because it fears John T. King, his manager, would supplant Will Hays as chairman of the national committee.

Another group declares Hays is trying to maneuver the unique situation so that he himself will be nominated.

The candidacy of Senator Johnson hangs like a bogey over the whole organization and there is growing talk that Johnson may carry his fight beyond the convention if necessary.

Herbert Hoover's friends have said repeatedly that he would not desire to run unless he could run as an independent.

If Johnson broke out with a third party, therefore, Hoover might get into the running.

The latest boom to get under way is that of General Pershing, and republican leaders today forecast this will grow materially in the coming weeks.

There are no leaders today who don't believe the weeks from now until the June conventions will be the hottest political periods in American history.

FINANCIAL HEADS IN CONFERENCE

Will Devise New Rates and Policies on Interest and Discounts

WASHINGTON—Bankers from all important cities were to meet here Tuesday with the federal reserve board to devise new rate and policies governing interest and discounts.

The meeting was called by the federal reserve board December 29, when it sent letters to all regional banks, asking them to make representatives of bank clearing houses.

The policies to be decided at the meeting will have an important bearing on credits all over the country, officials said.

The federal reserve board letter of invitation pointed out that New York clearing house banks recently adopted a rule under which their interest rates on balances of funds of depositing banks automatically advance one-quarter of one per cent each time the New York reserve banks advance by one-half per cent its discount rate.

This practice, according to officials, practically resulted in the neutralization of the purpose of the federal reserve bank in changing its rates.

It tended to draw more money into private banks which in turn became available in almost the same ratio as the funds of the federal reserve bank were curtailed, for loans.

The situation was further complicated, the letter pointed out, by spirited bidding among private banks which forced up interest rates and made government financing difficult.

ENGLAND TO ASK AMERICA FOR LOANS, SAYS FINANCIER

Sir George Paish

NEW YORK — Sir George Paish, the English financier in the U. S. to supply information to American bankers, to whom Europe will look for loans, has made an extensive study of economic conditions in all European countries.

In a recent talk he said that Europe was in a "terrible economic condition" and that England was the financial clearing house for the whole of it, so she needed all the help she could get.

He spoke of the United States being in a position to prevent overwhelming financial disaster in Europe and said the countries there are looking to America as their only source of succor.

"The amount of the loans necessary he would not venture to state but he referred to them as ' staggering '."

The United States must lend England money," he said, "because England is buying here extensively and reselling practically to all Europe."

The condition of central Europe is something most people do not understand, and the situation is most serious.

The economic situation in Austria will be reflected through the future world unless and comes to that country at once.

"England and Europe will be all right if sufficient money is forthcoming, but unless Europe gets the money she needs for reconstruction and sanitation the ravages of an appalling scourge will be all."

"An unsanitary condition exists in the Balkan states which threatens the lives of the peoples of all countries in Europe. Because of this condition a plague threatens which, if it once got started, would sweep over Europe like an all-consuming fire and might be expected to cause an appalling death rate. Such a plague might be impossible to check."

Sir George added that a Fight the Plague Council has been organized in England to raise funds to combat famine and avert plague in Austria and other countries. He was a member of the original war loan commission which came to this country under Lord Reading and is editor of the London Standard.

BULLET FROM POLICEMAN'S GUN KILLS RUNNING SKATER

CLEVELAND — James Glidden, 25, was killed here Monday night by a bullet which glanced off the ice of a skating pond and struck him in the head. Patrolman Frank Cochran, who fired the shot, was excused.

Cochran was on duty at the pond when several skaters complained against Glidden. He placed the man under arrest. While calling for a patrol wagon, Glidden started to run. Cochran gave chase and slipped and fell. He drew his revolver and called on Glidden to stop, fired low. Glidden ducked his head and the bullet glanced off the ice and into his head.

RAISES FLEAS FOR PROFIT

Bare Arm Serves As Feeding Grounds For Insects

LONDON — There's money in fleas, avers Professor Mark Northcote, of Hackney, flea specialist. By means of his trained flea circus he's traveled four times around the globe and made his living.

The professor is short of fleas just the common jumpy variety, but not dog or cat fleas. They're lazy. He's so short of them that he's advertising for good healthy fleas at 65 cents a dozen.

"I never had any difficulty in getting fleas in Australia," said Northcote. "When I ran short I just went to the nearest barn or where men sleep together, got a blanket and put it in the sun. In about five minutes out came the fleas and I'd put the biggest ones in bottles."

"What do you feed them on, Professor, mulberry leaves?"

No," came his answer, as he bared his right arm. "Myself."

On his arm were millions of little red spots. It looked as though he has scarlet fever from the writ to the elbow, and a particularly bad attack at that.

"Once every other day, when they are not working I feed them," said the professor. "But when they're working they get two meals, one just after breakfast for the afternoon performance, and one about supper-time for the evening show."

And how long does it take to train a flea to perform, Professor? What are some of the difficulties, and how do you overcome them?"

"Oh!" said he, "it takes three or four days to make them behave themselves and it's very simple. A flea naturally jumps. And though it may help him over many a difficulty it causes one for me, and I have to teach him to walk."

"So for the first few days he goes into a little glass test-tube, securely corked. He tries to get out and jumps to the top, he jumps again, falls down and hurts himself. Two or three days of this usually subdues him, and then he is ready to be harnessed."

"Now, a flea is like an elephant, he has a trunk in front and a regular neck. Round his neck you place a collar and to this fasten a piece of wire, fine as human hair, and harness the gentleman to a little carriage, about one half or three-quarters of an inch long and one-quarter inch deep. Having learned his lesson in his tube, the gentleman walks and dances the carriage."

"When fleas are plentiful I have had street cars drawn by six or eight fleas and driven by a coachman. And in my new show there's a regular cabby, whip in hand."

"How is that done?"

"Well a flea will hold on to anything he touches. So he's set on the cabby seat and held in position by a piece of fine wire fastened to his collar and secured behind him. This leaves his feet in front. A piece of wire with a hair on the end — the whip — is placed against these feet and the flea holds on tight, keeping the whip in the correct position."

"Thus with variations, I can make them turn wheels, draw up buckets of water and run races."

The Professor says he took in $105 one day in three hours at his flea circus, admission being five cents.

MORE REDS TAKEN BY OFFICIALS

High Officer of Communists Held For Deportation

NEW YORK — Pursuing a policy of seeking individuals and searching secret meeting places of alleged radicals, the department of justice operatives here Tuesday had added more than 100 persons to the list of those being held for deportation hearings.

In this number was Oscar T. Tzvetzov, executive secretary of the New York state communist party who had been in hiding under the name "Smith."

The great publicity given the recent wholesale raids, according to Chief William Flynn, under whose direction the raids are being made, has driven several leaders to cover and future arrests will be easier.

The only addition to the Ellis Island blacklist was a man, Gregory Weinstein, regarded as the right hand man of Ludwig C. A. B. Marx, "ambassador from soviet Russia."

Hearings began at Ellis Island under the direction of Byron L. H. acting commissioner of immigration, who said he faced a serious overcrowding of 1,200 radicals scheduled to arrive from all parts of the country. The action of the war department designating Camp Upton as a concentration camp, 1,200 in time, according to L. H. Ten or nearly half of the prisoners assigned, wanted hearings and declared themselves ready to go back to Russia.

INFRINGEMENT CHARGED

RED FORCES ARE STILL GAINING

Moscow Dispatches Say Extensive Victories Are Won

LONDON — Moscow wireless dispatches Tuesday claimed additional extensive victories for the red forces in Siberia.

Soviet armies have occupied the town of Bereznov, 400 miles northwest of Tobolsk, taking three steamers laden with flour and other food supplies, one communication cable, and other reported capture of the village of Yankersky with 125,000 tons of coal.

Bohemian forces have occupied Taga station on the Siberian railway captured 87 locomotives, 2,000 cars and a quantity of munitions. It was claimed.

Meanwhile a dispatch to the London Times from its Warsaw correspondent said Polish forces had resumed the offensive against the reds along the Pskoff railway and had captured Dvinsk.

In south Russia an Odessa dispatch said General Schilling had ordered the city defended from the approaching soviet armies at all costs.

A Helsinki dispatch by way of Copenhagen, reported a rumor that Grand Duke Michael Alexandrovich had escaped from Perm and was in hiding.

CLEVELAND — Frankie Brown, New York will meet Matt Brock, Cleveland in a ten-round match here Tuesday night. As this is the home town of Johnny Kilbane, featherweight champion, a large crowd was expected to turn out for a look at the man who knocked Johnny off his pins in their recent fight in the east.

Where Can I Find Relief From Itching, Terrifying Eczema?

Question on Lips of Afflicted. There is a harrassing discomfort caused by Eczema that almost becomes a torture. The itching is almost unbearable, and the skin seems on fire with the burning irritation. A cure from local applications of salves and ointments is impossible because such treatment can only allay the pain temporarily. The disease can only be reached by going deep down to its source, which is in the blood, the disease being caused by an infection which breaks out through the skin. That is why the most satisfactory treatment for all so-called skin diseases is S. S. S., which acts by cleansing the blood. Get a bottle to-day, and you will see results from the right treatment. Medical advice free. Address Medical Director, 48 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

Victor supremacy is built on Victor originality

It is significant that every worth-while accomplishment in the talking-machine art, every improvement of value in talking-machine construction, is the result of Victor skill and progressiveness.

The Victor Company is not a mere manufacturer of talking-machines. It is a creative organization. It developed the talking-machine to its present high state of perfection, and the years of experience and millions of dollars spent in exhaustive research and experiment all have a direct bearing on the superiority of Victor products today.

The mammoth Victor plant is devoted exclusively to the manufacture of talking-machines and records, and it is the only plant in the entire talking-machine industry which makes every part of every instrument within its own walls.

No other manufacturer today is qualified to produce an instrument as good as the Victrola. If the instrument you buy is to be the best, it must be the Victrola.

There are Victrolas in great variety of styles from $25 to $950, and there are Victor dealers everywhere who will gladly play your favorite music for you. New Victor Records demonstrated at all dealers on the 1st of each month.

RED FORCES ARE STILL GAINING

Moscow Dispatches Say Extensive Victories Are Won

LONDON — Moscow wireless dispatches Tuesday claimed additional extensive victories for the red forces in Siberia.

Soviet armies have occupied the town of Bereznov, 400 miles northwest of Tobolsk, taking three steamers laden with flour and other food supplies, one communication cable, and other reported capture of the village of Yankersky with 125,000 tons of coal.

Bohemian forces have occupied Taga station on the Siberian railway captured 87 locomotives, 2,000 cars and a quantity of munitions. It was claimed.

Meanwhile a dispatch to the London Times from its Warsaw correspondent said Polish forces had resumed the offensive against the reds along the Pskoff railway and had captured Dvinsk.

In south Russia an Odessa dispatch said General Schilling had ordered the city defended from the approaching soviet armies at all costs.

A Helsinki dispatch by way of Copenhagen, reported a rumor that Grand Duke Michael Alexandrovich had escaped from Perm and was in hiding.

REGISTERING OF BIRTHS URGED

Washington Conference to Ask Nation-Wide Laws.

22 STATES ADOPT PLAN

Deaths and Sickness Data Important, Too.

WASHINGTON — If your life, fortune or happiness depended on knowing the date and place of your birth, could you prove by official record those facts of your existence?

As recently as 1916 only 12 states registered births satisfactorily, and before 1900 very few states kept complete records of vital statistics. Only 22 states now have satisfactory registration laws.

During the early part of the war, many Americans in Europe were suspected of being British or German spies, and were informed their lives depended on official records of their births in the United States.

Cables sent to the native towns of the prisoners resulted in some cases in the desired information being furnished at once, and the men suspected were released. In some instances, no records could be found.

If a man is to inherit property, the question of his exact age becomes important. If the man believes he is 22, but cannot prove it by the family Bible, or by official records, the family fortune may pass on to a relative with unquestioned status.

The story is still told by lawyers of the boy who saved his fortune by having witnesses testify that he was born the same day as a certain registered horse.

SCHOOLS ASK RECORDS
Birth records are often needed to enforce school attendance laws, and to keep the children from being placed in shops and factories on the claim they are of legal age to work.

The registration of deaths and sickness is as important, if not more so, than birth registration.

An effort to co-ordinate vital registration laws and to urge a nationwide registration is to be made here this month at a conference of health officials and organizations fighting disease.

Thousands of preventable deaths occur in the United States every year. Health officials and doctors cannot attack disease until they know of its existence.

Once a city is aware of its deficiencies, it can start a campaign to overcome them. Without accurate statistics as a guide, any drive for better health is apt to be ineffectual.

HOW DO YOU GET JOB?
CHICAGO—It's pie to drive a pie cart. Under a new agreement made by the baker's union, pie cart drivers will make as high as $90 a week.

STAGE GETS MANY.
CHICAGO—More girl graduates of Chicago high schools go into the movies or become actresses than come teachers, according to figures gathered by a committee of teachers seeking higher pay for instruction.

RAIL CHIEF HINES SAYS CUMMINS BILL WOULD TAX EVERY AMERICAN FAMILY $175 A YEAR

By Basil M. Manly

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5 — The Cummins railroad bill, which has passed the Senate and is now in conference, will, if it becomes law have the most far-reaching financial and social effects of any legislation during this generation.

It will immediately increase freight and passenger rates by at least $750,000,000 — the equivalent of $35 a year for every American family.

As a result Director General Hines, a former railroad attorney of unquestioned conservatism, estimates the cost of living next year will be increased five times that amount, or $175, for every American family.

This is because every factor in the chain of distribution adds not only the accumulated freight rate, but a profit for himself.

Railroad workers will be deprived of the right to strike locally as well as nationally and are compelled to submit all their grievances to a system of arbitration boards, the final decision resting with the Transportation Board, on which labor has not a representative.

Every citizen is to be prohibited by penalty of fine and imprisonment for aiding or counseling any strike or striker.

Giving a railroad striker's wife and children bread will be punishable by a $500 fine or a year in jail.

The Interstate Commerce Commission will be required for the next five years to fix rates which will yield the railroads at least 5½ and probably 6 per cent on their total valuation.

Since for at least five years there will not be any other basis of valuation except the value which the roads have themselves fixed — their so-called property investment account — this means 5½ or 6 per cent profit on all the water that has been poured into the roads in past years.

The property investment account is approximately equal to the total of all outstanding stocks and bonds. As the railroads have $11,000,000,000 in bonds on which they pay only 4½ per cent, the guaranty of 5½ per cent on their aggregate stocks and bonds will give them a return of nearly 7 per cent on their stocks. A 6 per cent guaranty, which may be granted by the commission, would yield nearly 8 per cent on all railroad stocks.

Each road will be required to pay into a general contingent fund for the benefit of weaker roads a part of any excess earnings over 6 per cent on its valuation. This means that no strong, well-organized road will have any incentive to practice economies which will cause it to earn more than 6 per cent.

It is agreed by railroad executives that this will destroy the operating efficiency of the strong systems and block progressive improvement of equipment. They rely, however, on the opinion of former Justice Hughes and other eminent attorneys that the courts will hold this part of the act unconstitutional because confiscatory. This would leave the strong roads free from any obligation to part with excess earnings while all the roads would be assured of an average guaranty in excess of any three years in American railroad history.

No debts of the railroads to the government for improvements made during government control are to be paid for 10 years, altho the government is required to pay immediately all amounts due for the use of the roads during the same period, and also loan the roads $500,000,000.

All the railroads of the United States are to be consolidated into from 20 to 35 systems. The Sherman antitrust law is wiped off the statute books as far as railroads are concerned.

The Interstate Commerce Commission is to be reduced to a quasi-judicial body and all power of general supervision over the railroads is to be placed in a new board of transportation, with five members.

Altho the terms of members are to be 10 years, the first appointments are to be two for two years, two for three years, and one for four years. This insures that all the long-term members will be named by the next administration, which, in the opinion of those who drafted the bill, will be Republican, and safe and sane for the railroads.

The roads are given the right to federal incorporation so they may entirely escape state control. The bill aims to destroy all state regulation.

All federally incorporated roads are to have not less than 11 nor more than 15 directors, of whom two are to be selected from among the classified employees and two named by the transportation board; other interstate roads similar directorates.

Analysis of the Cummins bill would suggest that it was framed by combining sections of proposed bills drafted by the Association of Railway Executives, the National Association of Railroad Security Owners and the Transportation Conference of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce.

CHURCH ROBBED

Lockers Pilfered During Services Here Sunday

Articles of wearing apparel and $9 in cash stolen from the locker rooms of the First Congregational church during Sunday morning services, are believed to have been taken by a set of youths, according to Rev. W. L. Booth, pastor of the church.

The theft was committed during the Communion services between the hours of 10:30 and 11:30 a. m. A purse containing $9, an overcoat, muffler and pair of gloves were among the stolen articles.

Police were notified of the theft, Rev. Booth says, but as yet no clues to identification of the thieves have been discovered.

Famous Double-Duty Preparation Reaches Local Stores

Delicious Candy Combines Laxative and Antiseptic Properties

While antiseptics have been used for years and have been found invaluable in driving germs from the mouth, throat, and nose, it remained for Partola to offer a combination of laxative and antiseptic for the protection of the digestive organs. Partola has taken the public by storm wherever it has been introduced and now is offered for sale for the first time in this city.

The reasons for the tremendous popularity of Partola are several. In the first place it is a real candy. It looks and tastes like a mint candy. Its action is two-fold: it cleanses the bowels and stimulates the liver and, taken regularly, removes constipation. But it is by no means an ordinary laxative, for, in addition to its laxative properties, it is an internal antiseptic. It helps overcome and eliminate the disease germs and poisons which originate in the intestinal tract and which are said to be the cause of 90 per cent of all human illness.

Partola candies are for young and old. Local druggists sell them in 25c, 50c and $1.00 boxes. Try them today.

COURT KEPT BUSY ON DIVORCES

Husband Charges Wife Mended for Boarder But Not for Him
SAYS SHE STAYED OUT LATE
Wives Seek Legal Separation From Their Mates

When the boarder, Lewis Armstrong, was told that he had to leave the home of Frank Allen, Mrs. Elizabeth Mary Allen, 433 east First street, threatened to kill herself, Allen declared in a suit for divorce.
While she refused to do his mending, Allen says she took care Armstrong's mending was nicely done and looked after his welfare in preference to that of the husband. By her action, Allen says the boarder was made one of the family and so treated.
He says she told him to get out, instead of the boarder. He did leave, he says, and declares she and the boarder are now keeping house. He charged her with remaining out late at night with other men and under the pretext of visiting a friend, and going on excursions with other men.
They were married in Lima on New Year's day, 1903, and have a son Dale, 15 years old. Allen asks her dower in a lot in Allentown and in 75 acres of land in American township, be barred.
Mrs. Margaret C. Cochran, Bellefontaine avenue, is seeking a decree from John Cochran, Toledo, on the grounds of abuse and desertion. He works for the W. C. Nagel Electric company, Toledo, and earns $90 a month she says, but has left her wholly without support.

They were married in August, 1918, have a son a year old and separated November 19, last.
Mrs. Laura Hemenway, wife of Charles C. Hemenway, now a prisoner in the Ohio State penitentiary, was granted a divorce from her husband on the grounds of cruelty and desertion. She was given the custody of their young son.
The suit was filed over a year ago, but never heard. Failure to provide for the support of the son pleaded Hemenway in the penitentiary.
The divorce case of Frank B. Luper against Mae Luper was heard by the court and taken under advisement. Mrs. Luper was not in court to contest the suit. Service by publication was approved.

George Betz, en route to appear before the grand jury at Celina.

ST. MARYS.—Talking by wireless telephone, Robert F. Gowan, of Ossining, New York, was near bowled over when he found his auditors were high school principal and Mrs. Charles Candler, 315 north Perry street, St. Marys, Ohio. Gowan caught the Candler plant's dots and dashes and thought the plant was located at Syracuse.

ST. MARYS.—The examination of witnesses began at 1 p. m. Monday by the Auglaize county January grand jury. Thirteen transcripts are in hand for attention. The number of witnesses is not beyond the usual.

MOONSHINERS BEYOND STOCKADE AROUND STILL.—HUNTINGTON, W. Va. — Moonshiners in Calhoun County built a stockade around the still. Then out in front they placed barbed wire entanglements. Inside the stockade they had a plentiful supply of guns and ammunition. But the day that they had planned against—the day when the revenue officers came—found the whole garrison away. As a consequence the law officers had no trouble, seizing fifty-eight gallons of moonshine whiskey and a fine, large still.

DAYTON WOMAN

Took Tanlac Three Years Ago—
Still in Perfect Health,
She Declares

"I certainly have every reason to be thankful to Tanlac for it was three years ago that it overcame all my troubles and today I am still in perfect health," was the statement made a few days ago by Mrs. C. F. Haines of 311 Bank street, Dayton, Ohio.

"Before I began taking Tanlac I had suffered since childhood, in fact all my life I had been bothered with stomach and liver trouble, constipation and nervousness," continued Mrs. Haines. "My digestion had always been bad and I had to be very careful about what I ate and at times it looked like nothing would agree with me. My liver seemed to be sluggish nearly all the time, and I had to take a laxative every few days to relieve me of constipation. My nerves were in a wretched condition and as I could not get but little strength and nourishment from what I ate, I became weak and run-down and from morning till night I felt worn-out."

"My sister who is a trained nurse recommended Tanlac to me so highly that I made up my mind to give it a trial. It was surprising how quick and wonderful the results were, why, it took only three bottles of Tanlac to completely overcome all my troubles. From that day to this I have never taken another drop of medicine and I am still in the very best of health and am never troubled in any way. For three years now I have not been bothered in the least with indigestion, liver trouble, constipation or nervousness and that proves to me that my relief is permanent. I have a fine appetite, can eat anything, I want and digest it with no bad after effects. Tanlac has certainly been a blessing to me and I am grateful beyond words for the good it has done me."

Tanlac is sold in Lima at Hunter's Drug Store and the leading druggists in every town.

HARD-UP PASTOR REFUSES TO GIVE UP STRIKER'S JOB

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y.—The Rev. Howard J. Kingdon, pastor of the Baptist church in Beacon, who recently took a job in the Carol hat shop because he could not live on the salary paid by his congregation, continues to work there, notwithstanding the protest of workers in the store, who are on strike. He has petitioned him to secure employment elsewhere and retain from "working against those who, like himself, are victims of an inadequate wage."

"They are agitators," said the minister. "I shall remain at work until my congregation raises my salary. If they do, then—well, that's another story."

NEGRO EDUCATION URGED
BY TENNESSEE GOVERNOR

NEW YORK.—An appeal for protection of the Southern negro from the Northern radical agitator was made by Governor A. H. Roberts, of Tennessee, at a dinner in the Hotel Astor here, which marked the beginning of a campaign for $1,000,000 endowment for Fisk University of Nashville.

He made a plea for simple justice for the black race in the South and said that while the greatest blunder in the history of the nation was the granting of the franchise to the negro, thereby making him a factor in politics, the best way of meeting the situation and solving the race question is to educate the negroes for leadership of their own people.

FURS AND MYSTERY

AN Educational Advertisement
BY BLUEEN'S.

Fur buying is a side to the fur business equally as important to the prospective purchaser as the selling of furs, whether they be sold honestly or dishonestly.

To deal honestly with the customers of his concern, the fur buyer must know furs from A to Z—he must know exactly what he is buying and must sell them for exactly what they are. Then, too, he must know just what constitutes a reasonable buying price and a legitimate selling price. Unless he knows these things and unless he deals honestly with the public, most of whom know really little regarding furs, it will not take long for his concern to establish a reputation not at all envied by its more honest competitors.

A dealer who wishes to deliberately deceive his patrons may, easily enough, offer imitations upon which the workmanship is so skillful that it is hard to distinguish between them and the genuine. Of course, it is easy to detect badly or heavily dyed imitations, for the under fur is darkened beyond its natural state and the skin itself is stained, but a cleverly dyed skin will deceive all but an expert.

In imitation of the more or less expensive furs the domestic cat provides a wide variety of furs. White rabbit is sometimes sold as ermine, chinchilla or even fox; the fur of the muskrat readily lends itself to imitations of seal, mink and sable and other hare skins dyed have been sold as sable, fox or lynx, and common red fox skins are dyed in imitation of black fox and with white hairs added are sold as silver fox, one of the most expensive furs on the market.

The price of furs varies perhaps more than that of any other commodity of changeable value, and, as we have shown, substitution of one fur for another is comparatively easy. This makes it doubly advisable to

FAME MAY COME TOO LATE

Abandoned Career in Law to Study Art

PARIS.—The number of people in England who have heard of Jean Dudine could be counted on the fingers of one hand; in France he is known to a few hundred, not more, and yet he is undoubtedly a genius of supreme merit. When it is too late to give him any pleasure he will have a world-wide reputation.

Dudine is a Breton, educated by the Jesuits and it is due to their influence that he acquired early in life the habit of deep study and a passion for learning.

Dudine today is a man of about fifty-five years; his hair is iron gray and grows low on his forehead; his face is clean shaven like a priest, and his whole appearance suggests the priesthood. His nose is powerful and his upper lip stiff and long; his eyes are piercing and his eyebrows diabolical. As he looked up from the pages of his manuscript his appearance was like some half-fledged young blackbird raising his bill for a worm.

A young man he was a barrister and practiced in the town of Rennes; even in those days he was wondrously eloquent, original and combative. When he was pleading the courts would be crowded with interested on-lookers, who were spellbound at his oratory, but he was too original and too eccentric to be completely successful. A friend of his persuaded him to come to Paris and there he came under the influence of three remarkable men—M. Jacques Dulcrose, a man who has made popular in Europe the study of rhythmic gymnastics; M. le Dantec, an eminent scientist, and M. Za'me, an occult philosopher. He abandoned the law and took up the study of the fine arts; like Michelangelo, he felt that "there is but one art, and therefore he devoted almost equal attention to music, dancing, painting, literature and architecture.

Children Cry
CASTORIA

Dudine was an associate of Dalcroze, but, like many Frenchmen, he is quite incapable of combining with other individuals, so this partnership was of short duration, and Dudine soon set up an academy of his own. His study of architecture had taught him to believe that there was a mathematical principle underlying architectural ornaments, whether Greek or Gothic, and that this mathematical or geometric principle was closely related to psychic impulses. The results of this study he applied to dancing and tried to give a logical form to the pattern of the dances performed by his dancers. He has now at the present time many pupils, and their performances are full of interest, but inasmuch as Dudine has never studied the balance of pose of the human body in athletics, there is a lack of symmetry and grace about his ballets that is in no way compensated for by the logical pattern of the dance.

In music Dudine has a high position, but as a critic rather than as a creator. His articles in the "Courrier Musical" have been so pungent and so powerful that they have produced a profound and lasting impression on the music world of Paris. He has written one opera which has some merit, but he is not sufficiently a master of harmony and counterpoint to be great in this art. It is in literature that he has achieved undoubted and indisputable greatness; the early influence of the Jesuits has given him the love of the form of a well-constructed sentence, and in this art his sense of form is faultless. The first book of his that I read was "Art and Gesture," containing a careful diagnosis of the purpose and portent of art, parts of which are as illuminating as the finest passages in the manuscripts of Leonardo da Vinci, other parts are as obscure and as mad as the conversation of the Mad Hatter in "Alice in Wonderland." The next that I read was "The Fairy Grotto," a collection of short stories which are as interesting and as beautiful as any short stories in any language.

TO RELIEVE CATARRHAL
DEAFNESS AND HEAD
NOISES

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or are hard of hearing or have head noises go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Freckle Ointment (double strength), and add to it 1 pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has Catarrhal Deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

DELPHOS MAY GET NEW POSTOFFICE

Welty to Ask Congress for Appropriation Soon.

DELPHOS. — Announcement has been made here that Congressman B. F. Welty will appear before Congress at next session and make application for an appropriation sufficiently large to erect a post office at this place.

The last building act passed by Congress seven years ago, Congressman Welty says, called for appropriation of a sum to be used for erection of a Delphos post office. The amount appropriated at that time is insufficient to enable erection of the building.

Members of the local Community club in connection with the word of Congressman Welty, announce that efforts are being made by that organization, to secure a suitable site for the building, in event Congress appropriates the required amount.

PERFORMS MARRIAGE OF FIRST COUPLE

Ernest Botkins, newly-elected justice of the peace, officiated at the first marriage since taking his new office Monday afternoon.

John D. Petree, 53, cabinet maker, 209 South Union street, and Mrs. Mattie R. Shealey, 42, housekeeper, 602 1-2 north West street, were joined in marriage by Justice Botkin. The ceremony took place in the newly furnished marriage parlors of the justice on the fourth floor of the Metropolitan building.

CENTRAL HI SENATE ELECTS OFFICERS

David Steiner was elected President of Central Hi school Senate at the last meeting of the body during the first session, held Monday afternoon. The Senate will have a recess until January 12, when an open session will be held in the auditorium. The public will be invited to hear the speakers. The League of Nations is the subject which will be argued. Other officers elected at the meeting are: James Barr, President; Pro Tem; Perry Shook, Clerk; L. Collins, Sergeant-at-Arms, and Kleinberger, Assistant Clerk.

DANCY TO APPEAR HERE FRIDAY

Captain Dancy orator has been secured to fill the engagement January 9, under direction of the Lyceum course of Central Hi left vacant by the inability of William Howard Taft to appear at the Memorial Hall at that time.

PREMIUM LISTS READY FOR FAIR

Blue Ribbons Offered for All Exhibits at Show.

Premium lists for the second annual fair of the Allen County Midwinter Association have been issued. The fair will be held January 14, 15 and 16. Entries open Tuesday. The fair is open to Allen, Putnam, Van Wert, Hardin and Auglaize counties. Entries close Saturday.

Memorial Hall and tents to be erected on south West street nearby will be used for exhibits.

Percherons, Belgians, Fire and Clydesdales, general purpose, roadsters, mules, saddle horses and champions are all included in the premium list. Prizes are also offered for Welsh or Shetland ponies, Shorthorn and Polled Durham, Aberdeen-Angus, Herfords, Holsteins, Jerseys and Guernseys, all have a place in the cattle list. Shropshire, Oxford, Cheviots, Dorset, Merinos and Ramboulets may be shown in the sheep breeds. Poland Chinas, Berkshires, Durocs, Chester Whites and Spotted Poland China hogs are given a place at the fair. A loving cup will be given for the best display of ten birds of any variety of poultry, turkeys or water fowls, owned and exhibited by one person.

A pet stock department has been added this year, in charge of E. A. Enslin, including rabbits and canines. The Kiwanis club, Lima, will give a loving cup for the largest display of pet stock.

Grains, potatoes, baked goods and domestic art will also have a place at the fair. Girls sixteen and under will be given liberal prizes for baked goods and domestic art work.

In the stock-judging contests for boys and girls under 18, of horses, beef and dairy cattle, sheep and hogs, prizes of $5, $3, and $2 will be given for each class. Special prizes are also announced by the American Duroc Jersey Swine Breeders' Association, the Chester White Association and specials by the fair association for Poland China and Berkshires, as well as a corn display.

PUSS WINS 'BEER' STRIKE ON SHIP

Crew Rushes Suds to Cat to Prevent Departure.

LONDON.—Zulia the cat mascot of the steamer Maracaibo, won a "no beer, no work" strike when the liner docked in Porto Rico recently, according to the tale told by members of the crew when they arrived here Saturday.

The cat signed on with the Maracaibo two years ago. She would not drink milk and some joker gave her beer. She acquired an appetite for that beverage. Shortly before the steamer reached Porto Rico on a recent trip, Zulia became the mother of three kittens. Finding the ship's supply of beer was running low, the purser cut off her supply. In retaliation, she picked up her kittens and quit the ship cold as soon as they had docked.

The sailors, knowing it was "bad luck" for a cat to leave a ship, hunted her up on the pier. A bottle of "275" was produced and poured in a bowl. She lapped it up, and, having won her strike, marched back on the ship with her kittens.

NO HEALTH PROTECTION FOR VILLAGES OF OHIO

COLUMBUS. — Residents of Ohio villages and rural districts were entirely without health protection Monday and will remain so until health organizations can be perfected under the Griswold law, which virtually repealed the Hughes health code. The former village and township health boards passed out of existence New Year's Day altho health organization in the cities remains unchanged under the new law. District health boards and advisory councils in all parts of the state will be busy this week revising their organization and budgets for the year 1920, to conform to the new Griswold law.

Prison Correction

JUST HOW FAR our penal institutions serve their purpose of making more desirable citizens of those who have fallen from grace and have been decreed enemies of society has always been a debatable question. There are many arguments on both sides. It is like many other moot questions which can nearly be proved either way.

BUT, AFTER ALL contentions are heard pro and con, actual experiences leave considerable room for doubt in the minds of those inclined to believe that these institutions accomplish fully what they are expected to.

A NOTORIOUS counterfeiter who has served the majority of his life behind prison walls was apprehended the other day and will resume his life behind the bars. He is known as one of the most dangerous men our government has to contend with in this respect. At the expiration of each of his sentence he has gone back to his old profession. He has always "gone up" for the same offense, and when he was arrested recently after he had escaped from a federal prison he was found to have a number of bad coins in his pocket.

THIS MAN'S PRISON record shows him to be a model prisoner while held in restraint. He has made good in every one of Uncle Sam's penitentiaries and has gone out with the officials feeling that he had turned over a new leaf. But he hadn't.

ONLY A FEW DAYS ago a Chicago sheriff determined to allow a large number of hardened criminals to witness a hanging as a moral lesson. These men looked on while one of their companions went to the gallows and as the trap was sprung and the unfortunate man's body swung in the air before their eyes they raised a mighty howl, asking when they ate.

OF COURSE, THERE are many men who come out of prison with new ideals and a determination to live upright lives. The chances are that there are more of these cases than of the other, but it is certain that all are not cured of their evil ways.

Excess Profits Taxes

KEENEST STUDENTS of taxation and political economy are agreed that the excess profit tax, as well as sur-taxes are a governmental mistake. The unthinking is quick to say that taxes should be taken from the rich, but no law can be devised in business which will take them from the rich and not affect the poor.

INFLATED CURRENCY is undoubtedly a cause or part cause for present high prices, but the excess profits tax is a greater cause. What is needed in America is incentive, not extravagance or wastefulness. The excess profits tax leads to extravagance and many times to wastefulness. The initiative of the corporation or private business man disappears when it is known that no matter how hard he works he can receive only a certain amount of money. As a result he does not work so hard and he employs less people, buys less machinery, curtails the business which might easily expand under the stimulus of personal endeavor.

FOR TWO YEARS men of wealth have been afraid to sell anything they own, because the difference between what they paid for it and what they may sell it for, is declared to be profit. This is unfair, for the property should represent capital and not income. In other words the income alone should be taxed, not the principal involved. This has brought about undevelopment, old properties remaining unimproved and has destroyed what might have been turned into wealth.

WEALTH IS CREATION in the nth degree and final analysis. Man should not be over-taxed if he has ingenuity to turn something from nothing into a useful article bringing financial returns. Every incentive should be given to brains, while under the excess tax laws the best brains of the nation in every community are held in leash; and by the holding thousands of men are denied employment.

The Supreme Court Decides

BEER CONTAINING 2.75 percent alcohol is intoxicating and is prohibited in this country. That, in effect, is the ruling of the supreme court, the highest tribunal in the country, and it is final.

THE FIGHT to get this beverage on the market has proved futile. The manufacture of it will not be allowed under constitutional prohibition since the ruling of the court says it is an intoxicant.

THIS DECISION takes away the last hope of the wets to make a stand. They will have to be content with making something like beer but without any semblance of kick or turning out ice cream or something else.

THERE HAS BEEN a strong feeling thruout the country that prohibitionists went too far in taking away beer and light wine. It has been the hope of many that these drinks would be allowed. They were willing that whiskey should go if they were left. Constitutional prohibition goes into effect in eleven days, however, and this will be the driest country in the world.

HEALTH ADVICE

By William Brady, M. D.

THE PURPOSE OF BLOOD
TRANSFUSION

One professional doctor in New York has given fifty quarts of blood for transfusion into the veins of other persons, for which he has received $1,700, in sixty different transfusions, in a period of six and one-half years. At the beginning he weighed 175 pounds. Six and one-half years later he weighed 201 pounds. Meanwhile he had lost his total volume of blood about ten times. His hemoglobin, measured two months after his last donation of blood, was 70 percent whereas the normal is between 90 and 100 percent. Otherwise he was in good health.

A healthy donor may safely give as much as one-fourth of his total volume of blood in transfusion. An infant may safely receive from three to five ounces of blood from a healthy donor. An adult may receive up to a quart of blood.

Blood transfusion, is the ideal treatment for a person who has had a hemorrhage. It not only replaces the blood lost in the hemorrhage, but it stops bleeding when perhaps no other expedient will stop it. Transfusion of a few ounces of blood from a healthy patient or near relative into the veins of a new-born infant has saved life in countless cases of uncontrollable bleeding from the navel, mouth, stomach or bowel.

Transfusion is perhaps the best remedy for hemorrhage in hemophilia (bleeders).

For severe anemia a transfusion of normal blood yields results superior to any other known treatment, although the transfusion is not a specific cure. Small amounts of blood appear to accomplish about as much in anemia as do large amounts.

In certain cases of extreme debility from infection, from shock or from some grave toxemia or systemic poisoning incident to disease, transfusion will temporarily increase the patient's vitality and possibly tide over a crisis or make an operation feasible.

It is essential to determine that the donor is absolutely free from disease of a communicable nature, also to determine that the donor's blood will harmonize with the blood of the

"WHAT I'D DO IF PRESIDENT"

William McAdoo Outlines Views On Vital Problems

Says Peace Now Is Big Question

ALL DEPENDS ON TREATY

Trade Seriously Affected by Conditions

BY H. P. BURTON

NEW YORK — "What would I do if I were president?"

William G. McAdoo, sitting at his desk in the Equitable Building, looked out over Trinity Church to the Jersey coast-line beyond and he said:

"I think there are things much nearer and more important to the public welfare today than that question. What we want to consider now is the question of getting peace in the world."

"For until we satisfy the treaty and establish the basis of peace, we can have no world order, and hence no national order—no world prosperity—nor long."

"Under existing conditions no American business man can deal in import or export trade while the bases of peace are still undetermined and the international credit situation remains in its present chaos, and the economic situation is kept in a state of uncertainty."

"As export trade declines, so does national prosperity decline. The people must be made acquainted with this fact so they will insist that the obstructive tactics now employed in Washington by the Republican senators shall cease, and world order be quickly restored."

U. S. RAIL CONTROL URGED

"I came to know enough about the railroads of our country while I had the job of running them on a wartime basis—while we were 'railroading' the Kaiser to defeat—to know that upon their proper functioning depends the welfare of our people."

"We have got to realize that every phase of our life, social and economic, depends upon our transportation system. We have got to meet the question honestly as to whether our railroads are now to be unutilized or broken up again and we have got to know that even were they returned to private control today and operated on the most efficient basis possible, they would fall far short of meeting the necessary demands of this great nation."

It is plain to those who studied at close hand the problem during the war that we have got to provide for a great program of national railroad improvement. "We must provide sufficient freight and passenger facilities and enlarge our rolling stock and motive power and, more than all else, we must turn our attention to the providing of adequate and efficient terminals in our great cities. As these are centralized and operated today, they are obstructing construction, on the arterial system of our body, economic, and our transportation system is our circulating system."

"So far, all the proposals for solving our railroad problem are unsound and unsatisfactory and will not meet our difficulties. "I am convinced that we can arrive at the proper permanent solution by extending federal control for five years over the railroads and merchant marine—the internal and external transportation systems of the country."

"In this way only, by providing swift, adequate and high-gear domestic and outside transportation facilities, can we meet the world patient. This latter question is settled by mixing a minute quantity of the donor's blood with a similar quantity of the patient's blood, and observing the behavior of the mixed blood under the microscope. If agglutination or hemolysis does not occur in fifteen minutes, the donor's blood is safe to use. There is no other way of knowing whether a given individual's blood will prove acceptable in the veins of the patient. This is a curious physiological circumstance, that the blood of one individual may produce destructive changes in the blood of another."

WILLIAM G. McADOO.

competition for trade that will ensue as peace comes."

McAdoo touched the subject of industrial unrest.

"Much of this, I think," he said, "is the result of the unsettled state of the country due to the postponement of peace."

"But I do think that the problem of labor and capital is one of the major problems before America today and that it must be dealt with and soon, and in spirit of fine tolerance, not intolerance on the part of anyone."

"Labor feels and feels increasingly, the need for a larger voice in framing the conditions under which it is to work as well as the need for a fairer participation in the fruits of industry."

"In other words, we are face to face, as a nation, with the necessity of solving the problem of real industrial democracy."

"It is not easy but it can be done. The genius of America, developed under democratic ideals, is capable of bringing about eventually this great adjustment between capital and labor when modern line makes absolutely indispensable to human welfare."

"And while I am saying this I wish also to say that the protection and development of business in this country is just as vital a part of our culture as any other feature of modern society."

REDUCE TAXES
"Oppressive war taxes must be reduced, as I believe they can be reduced, if the Congress displays the proper wisdom. The war taxes are in any case unwisely and inequitably distributed."

"With proper statesmanship, our tax laws could be revised so that they would bear less onerously and hurtfully upon business and the people as a whole by a more equitable distribution of the burden. This needs to be studied not in a partisan spirit, but in a fine spirit, of genuine service to the American people."

"The responsibility of revising these tax laws rests upon the Republican Congress and they must not shrink it."

Which brings me logically to a piece of unwritten history concerning ing the plain Americanism of William Gibbs McAdoo.

Recently one of the greatest of the allied nations proffered to McAdoo a decoration in honor of his work during the war and he just naturally refused it, quietly but as effectively as if he had advertised his refusal.

It is safe to say that, if in the future, there should arise between the United States and a foreign nation any incident requiring the operation of a decisive Americanism, "favors received" would not embarrass William Gibbs McAdoo, if fate had placed him at the helm of the land of the free.

"THE PALISER CASE"

BY EDGAR SALTUS

Copyright, 1919 by the Wheeler Syndicate. Every Evening in the News.

In high red boots, wide purple breeches and a yellow mandarin, Jones entered the workshop. His appearance did not alarm him. He was invisible. Lloyd George and Clemenceau might have called. Mr. Ten Eyck Jones was not at home, sir. If necessary he was dead. Always, while he dressed, his servant put unseen, a tray on the workshop table, still unseen, disappeared. With the tray was the morning paper and the usual letters, which Jones never read. Morning in the workshop meant work. No interruptions permitted. On one occasion the house got on fire. His servant did not venture to tell him, though the firemen did. Apart from such outrages, necessarily infrequent, the only intrusion was the morning paper and the cat that talked in her sleep. The cat had many privileges, the paper had few. Sometimes it was briefly considered, more often it was not even looked at, but its great privilege consisted in being stacked.

On this morning Jones did look, but quite involuntarily, and only because a headline caught his eye. It was the headline from before which Cassy had backed. The leaping words shouted at the girl. They shouted at the novelist, a circumstance which did not prevent him from breakfasting.

The fruit, the crescents, the coffee not as customary, with his thoughts on his own copy, but on that which the paper supplied. It was very colorful. At the opera, the night before, Monty Paliser had been killed. In New York, many more were killed, but not so many are murdered, few are millionaires and fewer still have a box at the Metropolitan, where, apart from stage business, no one up to then had been done for. The case was therefore unique and, save for the assassination of Abraham Lincoln, without parallel. In the circumstances, the loaded line of leaping words was justified.

According to the story that followed and which Jones realized, must have reached the city editor just as the paper was going to press, an attendant, whose duty it was to visit the boxes after the performance and see what, if anything, the occupants had forgotten, had, on entering Paliser's box, found him at the back of it, unconscious, on the floor. There were no external marks of violence, but a commandeer physician, pronounced him dead and, on examination, further pronounced that death was due to internal hemorrhage, superinduced by heart-puncture, which itself had been caused by some instrument, presumably a stiletto.

A picturesque detail followed. The box at the left was the Harriwells. At the late hour, an attempt to communicate with the former had failed, but over the wire, Mr. Legrand Harriwell stated that the deceased had come in during the third act, that he had spoken to Mrs. Harriwell, after which he had moved back and had either gone or, remained in the rear of the box. Mr. Harriwell knew nothing else, he had been unaware of anything occurring, he was not in the habit of spying about and he wished it distinctly understood that he was not mixed in the matter, or Mrs. Harriwell either.

The dear thing, thought Jones, who saw him, a tall thin-lipped head of a brute, with a haw-haw manner and an arrogant air. God bless him!

But, Jones resumed to himself, yoyons! The opera was Aida, Paliser came in during the third act. The house then is brilliant. But during the fourth—the duo in the crypt—it is dark. It was then that he was done for and with what is assumed to have been a stiletto.

To cut out the account, Jones turned in search of a dagger, long, thin, wicked, which one adventurous night in Naples, he had found—just in time—in his back. On the blade was inscribed a promise, Penetrabo. Now his eyes roamed the table. He lifted the tray, lifted his copy, looked on the floor. Yet only the evening before, when Lennox was there and Cassy Cara had come, he had seen it. Since then it had gone.

The disappearance did not disturb him. Occasionally, in hunting for an object, he found it in his hand. Somewhere, he cogently reflected, and, taking a pencil, set to work. But the muse was timorous as a chicken. The metaphor is entirely apophorical. Jones had no faith in his own. He believed in regularity, in silence, and no interruptions. No intrusions of any kind. A letter was an intrusion, so also was news of the day. These things considered, when he did consider, after his work was done, sometimes he ignored them entirely. Usually he had a bushel of letters, but he had not opened, not looked, upon any at which he had not looked. On such is the life known as literary, at any rate, such was the life led by Jones.

On this morning, his copy, ordinarily fluent enough, would not come. Ideas fluttered away just out of reach. The sequence of a chapter had been in his head. Like the dagger, it had gone. He could not count for that disappearance, nor did he try. It would turn up again. So, ultimately, would the ousted sequence. For the latter's departure he did not try to account either. The effort was needless. He knew. An interruption had occurred. The news of the day had intruded itself upon him. A headline had entangled his thoughts.

Abandoning the pencil, he lit a cigarette. Across the room, above the bookcase, was a stretch of silk, a flight of dragons that he had got in Rangoon. Above the silk was an ivory mask, the spoil of sarcophagus, which he had found in Seville. He looked at them. The dragons fled, on the mask fell asleep. Something else took their place.

On the wall was the scene at the opera. In the golden gloom of the darkened house, it showed Paliser, sitting back in his box, presumably enjoying the Terra addio, for which Caruso had, as usual, been saving himself. Without, in the corridor, a figure furtively peering at the names on the doors. Then the voice of the soprano blending with that of the tenor and, during the divine duo, the door of the box opening, letting in a thread of light; Paliser turning to look and beholding that figure and a hand which, instantly descending, deepened the gloom forever.

It was certainly Terra addio, Jones reflected. Certainly, too, the scene is easy enough to reconstruct. But whose was the hand.

Flicking his ashes, he looked about and saw two hands, between which, he also saw, he was entire, free to pick and choose. One hand slight and fragile, was Cassy Cara's. The other, firm and virile, was Lennox's.

Lennox had threatened. He had been acridly murderous. He had a motive. He had the opportunity. He knew where Paliser would be. He had been supplied with a seat in the box. The hand was his. It was clear case. That was obvious, particularly to Jones, who regarded it obvious as very misleading.

Given the chance, he reflected, and Lennox might have done it. Paliser, but he would have done it with bare fists, never with a knife. It was not Lennox to use one. It was not Lennox at all.

Jones threw him out and pulled in Cassy Cara.

The case against her was equally clear. Presumably she owned the stiletto which a hat pin is. In addition, she also had a motive. If ever a girl had cause to up and do it, she had. Then, too, the risk was negligible. Any jury would acquit and tumble over each other to shake hands with her. For equity has justice that the law does not know.

Moreover there are crimes that jurists have not codified. Some are too human. Cassy's righting of her own wrongs belonged among the latter. Cassy's, that is, provided she had done it. But had she? Logically yes. If the police could look behind the scenes, logically they would say to her, "Thou art the man."

But Jones resumed, logic when pushed far enough becomes incoherence. The psychologist prefers vision and it would display none to believe that she did it. In the abstract that is to be regretted. A lovely assassin! A beautiful girl slaying a recreant lover! A future prima donna killing a millionaire! Monty Paliser murdered by the Viscountess of Casa-Erora! And at the opera! If I had ever put anything of the kind in my copy, reviewer would have indolently asked: "Why doesn't this imbecile study life?"

Jones laughed. The enjoyment of one's own ideas—or the absence of them—is a literary trait. When Dumas wrote he wrote. Here it is, then, Jones continued. If the police knew certain things they would nab Lennox. If they knew others, they would nab Cassy Cara. If they knew more, they would nab me. I should be held as a witness. This is cheerful, particularly as my sole complicity in the matter has been due to a desire to be of use. But that is just it. Through the enigmatic laws of life, any kindness is repaid in pain.

Pleasantly for a moment, he considered the altruism of that aphorism. Then he got back at the murder, which, he decided, must have been premeditated by some one who knew where Paliser would be. That conclusion reached, he groped for another. Lennox knew, but did Cassy know, and, if she did, had she utilized the knowledge?

To decide the point he reviewed the visit of the previous evening. Ostensibly Cassy's visit had been occasioned not by any wish to relate what had happened to her, but to acquaint Lennox with the cause of what had happened to him. In view of what had befallen her, the proceeding was certainly considerate.

In the misadventures of life, the individual is usually so obsessed with his own troubles that they blind him to those of another. But ostensibly Cassy had sunk her troubles and had pulled them up, not to exhibit them, but to show Lennox the lay of the land as it affected not her lay all but him. The proceeding was certainly considerate—unless it were astute, unless her object had been to employ Lennox for the weakening of her own revenge.

To decide the point, but was it probable? An ordinary young woman would have gone at it differently, gone at it hammer and tongs. Cassy's methods were merely finer. That was the common sense view. But was it psychological? The common sense view that is applicable to the average individual is applicable to a problematic nature and, consequently, not to Cassy, who must therefore, have had another incentive for her visit, an incentive stronger than the primitive instinct for revenge.

But, Jones asked himself, what are the fundamental principles of human activity? They are self-preservation and the perpetuation of the species. Every idea that has existed or does exist, in the mind of man is the result of the permutations and combinations of these two principles, of which the second is the stronger and its basis is sex. That is what actuated Cassy. She is, or was, in love with Lennox, and told him for no other reason.

That is it, Jones decided. But the course of her true love could not have run very smooth and, knowing that Lennox was otherwise interested, she took up with Paliser out of pique.

Pique! he repeated. But no, that is of Cassy Cara either. She—Like a thread snapped suddenly, the novelist's meditations ceased. On the wall before him the dragons alighted, the mask awoke. Between them a canvas was emerging. Dim, shadows, uncertain, it hesitated, wavered, advanced.

Then, as it hung unsupported in the air—far too unsupported, he presently thought—he looked it over. To apparitions he was accustomed. They were part of his equipment. Unsummoned, without incantations they came, sent, one might think, by the muse whom he derided, but more naturally and very simply produced by the machinery in his brain.

Now, as he examined the canvas, its imprecision diminished, the shadows passed, the obscurity lifted, the penumbra brightened, outlines defined themselves, the coloring appeared a coloring, after the manner of Rembrandt, composed of darkness in which there is light and which, as such, reveals.

Jones stood up, turned around and sat down again as gamblers, disquieted by their luck, will do.

A Woman's Message to Women:

"When I received your generous trial treatment, I was run-down, almost a wreck, could scarcely stay up to do my work. I had little interest in life, was irritable beyond control, but believe me when I say your treatment gave me a new lease on life. I feel a new woman. The terrible pains in my side and the heavy dragging-down feeling are all gone. I feel a new woman. I am an operator. Mrs. Sumners' Opaline Remedy is truly a Godsend to suffering women. Please print this if it will help another to recover."

MRS. T. G. CARTER, 2009 Russell Ave., DETROIT, MICH.

"Six months ago I wrote for a notice of Mrs. Sumners' Opaline treatment. I had spent hundreds of dollars seeking health, before I ever saw your advertisement. I was just at the point of leaving an operation, as I was in terrible shape from my long illness. I ordered a box of your treatment, and today I am a well woman, and do my work and enjoy myself. Words cannot express my gratitude. Use my letter wherever you wish, as I am convinced there is nothing in the world like the Opaline treatment."

CORNER MAIN AND SQUARE

IN SUSIE SMARTS DAILY MAIL

Dear Miss Smart: Please answer the following questions concerning a birthday party:

(1) I will be 15 years old soon, and will it be all right to have 15 boys and girls at my party? (2) What would be nice to serve without having to set a table, something that is not very expensive. (3) Would it be all right to invite boys whom my brother has brought to the house, out whom I have never met, if I know their names? (4) Is it all right to have the same number of boys as girls? (5) Would it be all right to decorate the parlor with pink crepe paper? (6) Is it proper to dance at a birthday party? (7) Please suggest some games favorable for the party. (8) Should I write invitations to each one, or, as some of them are school friends, should I just tell them? Thanking you, MICKY.

Ans. (1) About fifteen girls and boys would be a nice crowd to have at a party. (2) A buffet luncheon is a labor-saving method of serving refreshments, and you should have sandwiches, olives, a salad, fruit gelatine and assorted cakes, and serve either coffee or hot chocolate. (3) It will be perfectly all right, but why not have your brother introduce you to them when they call again. (4) Some games require the same number of girls as boys, and it is always nicer to have couples. (5) A color scheme of pink and white would be very appropriate, and could also be carried out in the luncheon. (6) Certainly. (7) Contests are always enjoyable and more zest is added by the offering of some little prize. (8) Written invitations show better taste generally than oral invitations, and could be managed with little expense.

Dear Miss Smart: Is it best to raise an adopted child letting him think he is your own, or should you tell him the truth when he is old enough to know?

What can one get to remove the eyebrows without having to go to the beauty parlor each time? R. E.

I believe that the truth should be told the child as soon as it can understand. So much trouble is apt to develop later when the child is kept in ignorance.

The practice of removing eyebrows seems to be abominable. They come back thicker an' amore irregular than before. Do not try this either at home or in a beauty parlor.

S. K. Write to the governor of the state for the address and enclose a stamped envelope and a stamped and addressed envelope.

Dear Susie Smart I am a girl nineteen years old and I have friends girl friends of whom I think a lot, but I have wanted for a long time some girl who would be a pal.

It is easy to be friends when it costs nothing. To me friends worth having are those who are the race of trial and danger. This is the kind of friendship I have always wanted.

I am a member of a church and I believe in a religion that looks and hits up I do not dance or play cards, and some think I have a mighty dull time, but I have learned that real fun is found in doing the things we would not be ashamed to be doing "when the Master comes."

Do you think I am radical or cranky? I am a girl who laughs, jokes and enjoys life.

NEVER GIVE UP.

Your views seem radical to me but I am no judge for you in this matter. Live up to what you yourself think is right. All of us have different moral standards and should follow what we ourselves consider right.

A line from Robert Browning always seemed to me impressive. "Trust God: see all, nor be afraid." This means to me that it is narrow to condemn what we have not given earnest consideration.

In regard to friends, doubtless your strict moral standards have much to do with your loneliness. Most young people today are thoughtless, pleasure loving and have not the interest in religion which you show. If you feel that you are right, stick to your convictions and trust that sometimes you will know others with your standards.

Dear Miss Smart: I am a young man of twenty and I am going with a girl about the same age. I have gone with her almost six or seven months and think very much of her.

The last time I went with her was about a month ago. I have met her and talked with her since then and have tried to make dates with her several times, but she always has had something to do. But she expressed her sorrow.

"There's a Reason"

To try to control railroad rates by arbitrarily limiting profits is to put the manager who makes his profits by efficiency and economy on the same level as the one who tries to accomplish the same result through extortionate charges.
—Hadley Railroad Securities Commission; Report to the President—1911.

THE old-time pack-bearer could carry a hundred pounds ten miles a day.

The railroad is the modern pack-bearer. For every employee it carries 2,000 times as much.

Back of each railroad worker there is a $10,000 investment in tracks and trains and terminals, with steam and electricity harnessed like a great beast of burden.

Without this mighty transportation machine the railroad worker could do no more than the old-time packer. But with it he is enabled to earn the highest railroad wages paid in the world, while the country gains the lowest-cost transportation in the world.

The modern railroad does as much work for half a cent as the pack-bearer could do for a full day's pay.

The investment of capital in transportation and other industries increases production, spreads prosperity and advances civilization.

To enlarge our railroads so that they may keep pace with the Nation's increasing production, to improve them so that freight may be hauled with less and less human effort—a constant stream of new capital needs to be attracted.

Under wise public regulation the growth of railroads will be stimulated, the country will be adequately and economically served, labor will receive its full share of the fruits of good management, and investors will be fairly rewarded.

COFFROTH LEADS IN HOT CHASE

NEW YORK—Jim Coffroth, the American promoter, seems to have made a triple jump into the king row in the game after the Dempsey-Carpenter fight.

Breaking the silence which has hung over the Dempsey camp since last July on subjects pertaining to the real business, Jack Kearns has announced that he has signed the champion's services over to Coffroth.

A purse of $400,000 for a 45-round fight in Tia Juana, Lower California, promoted the champion to set out of the camera focus, long enough to scribble his "John Harrison" on the agreement.

Coffroth now faces the task of getting the French aviator, Monsieur Carpenter, to use some ink on the second line. His lot seems more hopeful than that of Charles Cochran, the London producer, who is here chasing Dempsey with a parchment signed by the blaster of England's hopes.

Cochrane, it seems, made a bum play too early in the game. Instead of getting the champion in close quarters for his bid of $294,000, he exposed his hand and Coffroth immediately slammed one higher on the board.

He also let the American know that Carpenter had signed for $105,000.

It is no stale secret also that Carpenter wants to fight on this side of the water. He is right in believing that the gate would not be so large in England or in France.

Some on the inside of lightdom have maintained from the start that Carpenter signed up with Cochrane just to get the ball rolling. It was also said that the Frenchman let it be known to Dempsey that he wasn't particularly anxious to have the champion sign with Cochrane, and that it would be to their mutual advantage to mark time while some other of the promoters were getting their appetite worked up for the fight.

Dempsey is averse to fighting in Europe. He has very good personal reasons. Strange climate, strange crowds and strange rules might not be to his liking. So he wants to fight here.

So, if Coffroth has a few dollars in the hole to offer the champion and a theatrical engagement or two, he seems the best bet to date.

SHOP LEAGUES IN SESSION

Three Industrial league games Tuesday evening at the "Y" are expected to draw a flock of baseball fans.

The trio of contestants will be the first among the shop men since the holidays and each of the six teams in the circuit are out to start the new year in the basketball right way.

Interest in the games Tuesday seems chiefly centered about the South High Faculty-Lima Locomotive game. The Locomotive have been traveling at a fast clip in the league and have not yet been defeated. The beaten several times the Faculty men have developed into quite a team and will be in the best of trim for the league leaders.

Other games on list are Grammer-Bernstein and Ohio Steel, Garford-Ease Iron.

BABE TO PLAY RIGHT FIELD

NEW YORK.—George (Babe) Ruth, king home-run hitter of all times, will play right field next season for the Yankees. The services of the star slugger were surrendered by the Boston Red Sox for a sum said to exceed $100,000.

Harry Frazee, former owner of the baseball world's biggest drawing card, was forced to the sale, he said, because the Red Sox were fast becoming a one-man team and he could not meet the demands of the pitcher-hitter for $20,000 a year salary.

Miller Huggins, manager of the Yankees, is now in California with a contract for his new player. The management has not made known what salary will be offered Ruth.

SIGNING OF THORPE BY AKRON MAY MEAN SUCCESS OF INDIAN

Jim Thorpe, Indian, track, football and baseball star, in the college and professional world, may have witnessed the stroke of good fortune recently which may prove the making of the Indian in the athletic world. Thorpe was recently transferred to the International league with the recently-admitted Akron team. He will work in the outfield for the Akron tribe. In big league baseball Thorpe has been the idol of thousands, but for some unknown reason has been unable to make good. In his new location it is believed that he will be a rousing success from the start.

HIGH COST IN BASEBALL

BOSTON, Mass.—Estimates unofficial, but said to have been based upon "inside" information, placed the figure at which "Babe" Ruth was sold at the unprecedented sum of $125,000. Efforts to have the estimate substantial or denied failed, but it was generally reported that the figure was not far from correct.

If the estimate proves accurate the sale of Ruth not only elevates the trading of baseball players to inclusion in the category of sugar, shoes, clothing and other high-priced necessities, but records a sale at more than double the highest price heretofore paid for a player.

When Alexander and Killifer were traded from Philadelphia to Chicago, $55,000 changed hands. The greatest price paid for a single player up to the trading of Ruth was said to have been the $50,000 given for Tris Speaker, when he went from the Red Sox to Cleveland. Eddie Collins and Frank Baker are other players who sold for $50,000.

AMES BADLY BEATEN

BUFFALO, N. Y.—Alvin, Ohio lightweight, was soundly thrashed by "Red" Cunningham, Buffalo, in two rounds here Monday. Ames filled in for Billy McCann, who was to have fought Cunningham. McCann is suffering from a bad ear and an injured hand. In the other ten-round go, Willie Devore, out-puined Patsy Scanlon, Pittsburg.

Young Baker, of Syracuse, out-pointed George Roney of Buffalo in six rounds.

SCRAP HOT DRAW

LYNN, Mass.—Harry Carlson, of Brockton, and Chick Simler, of South Boston, fought a 12-round bout to a draw here Monday night. An agreement was reached before the bout that if both men were on their feet at the end of the bout it would be declared a draw.

$200,000 LIMIT OF ENGLISHMAN
Charles H. Cochrane, English promoter, who bid $200,000 for the Dempsey-Carpenter fight, said Monday night that his offer has not been changed and that he is not worrying over the $400,000 offer of Jim Coffroth for the big bout.

Cochrane was not alarmed over the Coffroth offer. He said "anyone in the world is free to bid for the scrap."

Cochrane intimates that he will not go over the $200,000 offer saying "there is nothing new with me today, and there will be nothing unless Dempsey accepts the $200,000 which I offered him."

LOCALS FEAR FOSTORIA

Central's basketball representatives are going thru extensive training preparatory to their clash with Fostoria Friday Jan. 9. Fostoria is feared more by the locals than any other team in the Trolley League. This team has always been a champion and has frequently carried away big honors at the Delaware Tournament.

Central has it doped out that she will win because Fostoria closed her football season rather late and has been unable to get much practice on the court. Friday's struggle will be Fostoria's first game this season.

On the other hand Central has played two games and is in perfect condition. But Coach Huenstein is taking no chances and is putting the boys thru drills every night.

MAKES $10,000 OFFER

POTTSTOWN, Pa.—Jimmy Jennings, local boxing promoter, has offered Mike O'Dowd an offer of $10,000 to fight Jackie Clark, 20 rounds for the world's middleweight title May 11.

YANKS MONEYED DRIVE STILL ON

By HENRY L. FARRELL.
NEW YORK.—Purchase of Babe Ruth, the home-run king, by the Yankees for a reported price of between $100,000 and $125,000 is the climactic step in the moneyed drive for a pennant in New York.

Harry Frazee, owner of the Red Sox, who was forced to the sale because he could not meet the slugger's salary demands, has not made known how much Colonels Ruppert and Huston paid for the star hitter and fielder and the biggest drawing card of the major leagues.

If it was $125,000 it will run the sum the Yankees management has spent for playing strength in a few years up to about $250,000.

In the middle of last summer's campaign the Yankees started the baseball world by buying another rebel Red Sox star, Pitcher, Carl Mays, for a price reported at $50,000, but it was brought out in the litigation that ensued that the club owners had paid $70,000 for the submarine slamban.

Previous to that the Yankees paid $25,000 for the services of Frank (Home-run) Baker and sizeable sums for Lee Magee and Duffy Lewis.

The Giants, the town-mates of the Yanks in the National league were help up last season as the most glaring example of buying a pennant. But the Giants are crowded almost into insignificance by the liberality of the colonels.

Previous to this deal, the price tags on Mays, Tris Speaker, Eddie Collins and Joe Jackson, rode the crest of the financial wave at $50,000. Alexander and Killifer drew $55,000 and Strunk, Bush and Schang drew $60,000.

It is a mooted question if a pennant can be bought and it may be proved this year for the skeptics as the Yankee colonels say they are not thru with the Ruth deal, but are out to assemble, by means of much cash the greatest team that ever played together.

The reported purchase price of the Babe is not as staggering as it looks on paper. It is cold business and that is the underlying factor of the whole transaction. It is a good investment.

The Yankees were in dire straits for a good outfielder and by spending a little more money than would be required to get a fair player they landed the biggest drawing card of baseball, a player who in the will draw a gate that will pay for the purchase price penny for penny. And if he clubs the Yankees into a pennant, he will pay a dividend on the investment. And in addition, the Yanks may win more support in their political fight against Ben Johnson by showing the opposing faction just how strong they are financially.

It must be figured too, that the purchase price does not end the financial outlay. Ruth demanded $20,000 a year of the Red Sox and it's a cinch that his demands of the Yankees will be less modest when he has heard of the coin that was paid for him.

POPULAR MOVIE STAR TO BE SEEN HERE

LIMA'S most popular, admired movie idol, William Farnum, whose every picture brings throngs of theatre-goers to witness his latest triumph, is to be seen in Lima in his very newest vehicle, "Wolves of the Night," which comes to the Rialto theater for four days starting Friday, January 9. The play is in seven acts and pronounced by critics to be the star's most brilliant success. It is a powerful story of high finance and love, and Farnum-fans are promised an unusual treat. Always pleasing, Mr. Farnum's art is especially well portrayed in "Wolves of the Night."

JACK DEMPSEY
Jack Dempsey has arrived at the Los Angeles film colony to begin work on the serial, "Dead or Alive." He was met at the Los Angeles depot by a delegation including Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, Charles Chaplin, Tom Mix, Harold Lloyd, Ruth Roland. At the head of the reception committee was the mayor of Los Angeles.

Frederic Chapin is the author of the serial. As one might guess, there are several fights in "Dead or Alive." "Fighting Cressy," just released, stars Blanche Sweet.

BLANCHE
The movie is a film version of the story of Bret Harte.

BARRYMORE
A London music hall of 1850 has been reproduced at the Artercraft studio. It will be used by John Barrymore in making his film version of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

COB
"The Adventures of Bill," by Irvin S. Cobb, is to be filmed. Harry T. Morey will play the leading role. Work will be started in January, 1920.

NOTES
William Duncan and Edith Johnson are making a serial, "Love and Honor."

VAUDEVILLE

ORPHEUM—They came—and conquered—the strangest, cutest, most charming little folk or earth-seventeen Lilliputians, hardly as large as the average child of three or four years of age, and just exactly like the Lilliputians of which you read in "Gulliver's Travels." They are the Midget Follies, a musical comedy company that is the all-time attraction at the Orpheum theatre. With them is a singing and dancing chorus of the loveliest, liveliest, youngest and in every way the most beautiful and bewitching that ever tripped the light fantastic at the Orpheum. The Midget Follies opened their engagement at the Orpheum at the three show Monday. They will present two full-sized musical comedies of radiant proportions: "Lilliputians" for today and tomorrow, and one for the last half of the week and Sunday, with a complete change of program at the matinee Tuesday. "The Midget Follies" is the greatest novelty ever brought to Lima. And what is more, it is one of the most delightful entertainments imaginable. Each of the two extravaganzas consumes an hour and thirty minutes. The Follies carry a solid caravan of special scenery, and more than one hundred trunks (labeled with dazzling costumes). Thus, with the change of comic opera each Thursday, there also will be a complete change of wardrobe and stage settings given at the Orpheum by the Midget Follies. Prices of admission are from ten to twenty cents for matinees and from ten to thirty cents for evening performance. There will be a special bargain price for children at the Orpheum Saturday.

THE SCREEN

FAUROT—The new program at the Faurot today has Wallace Reid for its headliner in the new Paramount-Artercraft picture "The Lottery Man." It is a screen adaptation of Rida Johnson Young's successful stage comedy. Mr. Reid is supported by Wanda Hawley, Harrison Ford, Pauline Midegley, Sylvia Ashton and other popular Lasky players and there are hundreds of extra people used in several of the big scene. Other films of the program include:

—REGENT—Charlie Chaplin stood for two hours at the corner of Broadway and 42nd street talking with the famous traffic cop, Larry O'Toole—most conspicuous figure on the New York police force. This was while Charlie was contemplating a comedy photograph on the ludicrous errors of the general public at so busy a crossroad. He got plenty of information from O'Toole and scores of traffic oddities which he has happily incorporated into the mirth-provoking comedy, "A Day's Pleasure," which is to be shown at the popular Regent theatre for four days commencing tomorrow. Showing with Chaplin will be the newest photoplay of Pauline Frederick, "The Loves of Letty." The true stamp of a well rounded picture is its ability to exert an universal appeal—an appeal that brings response from people of all ages, tastes and fancies. Such a picture is "The Loves of Letty," adapted from Sir Arthur Wing Pinero's stage success, "Letty." Well rounded in every detail, logically constructed, rich in variety of settings and telling a human story, "The Loves of Letty" will strike a sympathetic chord in every woman's heart, for it is exactly the kind of a picture that present-day motion picture audience find to their liking.

Fans will have a last opportunity to see Mabel Normand in "Jinx" today. This photoplay production has very evidently pleased a major portion of the city's population.

Seeking To Abolish Movie Star System

Producers Find Them An Expensive Luxury But the Dear Public Insists Upon Having Them—Gossip of Movie World

It is generally believed that the producers want to abolish the star system. There are reasons for them to do so. Stars are expensive luxuries. They cost more and more every year. As their popularity increases, their demands increase, and there is no limit as to how far they will go.

But there is little likelihood that the producers will rid themselves of their stars so long as the attitude of the public remains as it is. They are more anxious to make money than they are to dispense with the stars; indeed, it is because they want to increase their profits that they are anxious to eliminate the personal factor in their motion picture billings. But so long as they can make some money while dividing their profits with their actors, they will not try to introduce a new system by using which they may not make any money at all.

And the public is interested in personalities more than it is in pictures. To be sure, it wants and demands good pictures and it will not accept the stars when they appear in bad ones. But even the good pictures require the name of some important player or other to persuade the people to see it. At least, so it seems at present. Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks and Norma Talmadge are names that carry more weight, than Paramount-Artercraft, World Film Corporation and Selznick.

"Father always took my little brother Joseph out for a walk and when passing a chewing gum box he would give him a penny to get some gum. One Sunday when coming out of church father gave Joseph a penny to put in the poor box. After dropping it in he stood looking at the box and father asked him what he was waiting for. 'I didn't get any gum yet,' was Joseph's reply."

"Mabel," said her mother, "it seems to me that you had the gas turned rather low while young Huggins was here last evening."

"It was purely for economy's sake, ma."

"There is no use trying to beat the gas company, my daughter. I've noticed the shutting off of the gas is followed by a corresponding increase of pressure."

"Well, that lessens the waist, doesn't it, mother, dear?" replied the artless girl. And her fond mother could not find an answer.

"No doubt about it," exclaimed the physician: "by means of this wonderful discovery old men can be made young."

"Why don't you try it on yourself?"

"It's no good for a doctor. A doctor spends half his life trying to look old enough to be regarded as highly erudite and experienced."

"Ever borrow an idea?" asked the young humorist.

"Among us professionals it is considered permissible to borrow back and forth," said the old-timer. "How- ever, I hope you'll avoid something a friend of mine once did, and has been sorry for ever since."

"What was that?"

"He stole a joke from a religious paper."

A MESSAGE FROM HOME FOLKS

The Remarkable Record Made by Glando Pine Makes It the Greatest Cough Remedy of Modern Times.

The undersigned druggists make the following remarkable statement concerning the sale and satisfaction of Glando Pine, highly concentrated cough compound, which is sold under an absolute guarantee to give satisfaction or money will be refunded:

"In all of our experience in selling Glando Pine, we have not had a bottle returned, nor have we heard of a dissatisfied customer."

John W. Miller, Dayton, O.; Trautman and Keve (Burkitt's), Dayton, Ohio; the Meyers Bros. Co., Fort Wayne, Ind.; Kollinger's drug store, Fort Wayne, Ind.; Pioneer drug store, Montpelier, Ind.; Haven's drug store, Van Wert, Ohio; Thompson drug store, Lima, O.; Kendall's drug store, Celina, Ohio; Barber's drug store, Tazewell, Ind.; D. and N. Pharmacy, Fort Wayne, Ind.; the Court Pharmacy, Muncie, Ind.; Glando drug store, Paulding, Ohio; Tonal Pharmacy, Bellefontaine, Ohio.

Glando Pine is a splendid cough medicine that can be prepared at home at a saving of about $2 the pint. It is pleasant to take and contains no narcotics or habit-forming drugs. It keeps indefinitely. It can be used satisfactorily where any cough remedy is needed. It can be safely given to babies.

Get three ounces (50 cents worth) of Glando Pine with full directions for preparing and you will have a cough remedy that is excelled by none.

For whooping cough add an ounce of fluid extract of chestnut leaves.

A. T. Sherer, the owner of a machine shop at Haviland, Ohio, says:

"My son had a severe cough for several years. After doctoring and trying a number of cough remedies we began to think his case a hopeless one. He got no relief until he used Glando Pine. The first bottle relieved him. He continued its use until he was cured. He is now well, and I believe Glando Pine saved his life."—Adv.
